6. How long does Kinopolis keep my personal data?

Kinopolis keeps your personal data only for as long as necessary for the purposes described and in accordance with legal obligations.

Thus, the questions you ask us are kept for a period of 6 months following the handling of your question. The data we keep to personalise our communication to your destination and keep you informed of our products and services, are deleted within 3 years after your last active interaction with Kinopolis. We keep some data for a period of 10 years, but only for evidentiary purposes in the event of disputes or in order to be able to respond to a legal request from a public authority.

At the end of the applicable storage period, the data shall be erased or made anonymous.

7. Does Kinopolis transfer my personal data to other organisations?

For the purposes described in Article 3, Kinopolis may use so-called "processors". They act only on our behalf and will therefore only process your personal data on our instructions and within the framework of this Privacy Policy.

For example, we use suppliers to provide marketing, communication, logistics and IT services, to personalise and optimise our service, to process credit card transactions and collections, to limit fraud in credit card transactions or other payment methods, to provide customer service, to collect debts, to organise contests, etc. These suppliers may be given access to your personal data or other information in the course of providing these services. We allow these companies to process your personal data only to the extent that such processing is necessary for the provision of their services. We also ensure that these processors guarantee an appropriate level of data protection security.

In addition, we may transfer your personal data to and share them with companies in the Kinopolis group, the latter being considered as a processor or joint controller, as the case may be.

Furthermore, there may also be interactions with web service providers and social media platforms. For example, our website may also contain performance and social plug-ins. By connecting for example to our products and services via social networks, such as via the social plug-in of Facebook and Instagram, you may also share certain information with these third parties. Performance plug-ins (for example Google Analytics) analyse your surfing behavior to help the Kinopolis Group to improve its website. These types of plug-ins are managed by the social media and the web service providers themselves. We therefore advise you to read the terms of use and privacy policies of these social networks and/or providers, over which Kinopolis has no control.

Kinopolis Group also shares, in certain circumstances, personal data with social media platforms or web service providers for advertising purposes, such as showing advertisements relating to films, whether or not in collaboration with film distributors. These advertisements are shown on social media or via web service providers themselves. In this context, the display of advertising is governed by the terms of use and privacy policy of these social networks and/or web service providers, over which Kinopolis has no control. We therefore advise you to read in addition to our Cookie Policy, also the Terms of Use and Privacy/Cookie Policy of the networks and web service providers in question.

Our own Privacy and Cookie Policy governs only the use of the data we collect and process ourselves. In the cases described above, Kinopolis Group often acts as a joint controller with the social media/web service provider or the partner (such as a film distributor for such advertising) for the provision of the relevant personal data. Please refer to section 8 below regarding your rights in this regard.

When we process your personal data outside the EU, we ensure, through contractual or other measures (such as the standard contractual clauses of the European Commission), that these data benefit from an adequate level of protection comparable to the level of protection applied within the EU.

8. What rights can I exercise with regard to my personal data?

- the processing of your data is unlawfully implemented and you oppose their erasure and instead require the limitation of their use;

It is also possible for you to transmit the personal data you have actively provided to another service provider. This is what is called the “right to data portability”.

Right to object

Whenever the processing is based on a legitimate interest of Kinopolis, you have the right to object to it.

You thus have for example the right to object, at any time, without charge and without justification, to the planned processing of your data for the purpose of direct marketing, including profiling.

Right to withdraw consent

If the processing is based on your consent, you have the right to withdraw your consent at any time, without prejudice to the lawfulness of the processing based on the consent given before the withdrawal of the consent.

For more information about the above rights we refer to our FAQ's on the Kinopolis website(s). ”.

9. How can I exercise these rights in practice?

As part of an honest and lasting relationship of trust with you as a customer, Kinopolis strives, as far as possible, to give you control over the personal data that we process concerning you.

You can simply exercise all the above-mentioned rights via the self-service platform at your disposal.

If you have a My Kinopolis account, this tool is already available in your My Kinopolis account. If you do not have a Kinopolis account, you will find the procedure for enforcing your rights in the FAQ which is available on the Kinopolis website.

Minors under 13 years of age, in these cases, must also complete the email address of one of the parents or legal guardians who will then receive explanations about the minor's online activities. Parents will also be asked to read the Privacy Protection Policy and the Cookies Policy together with minors and will be given the opportunity to erase the minor's data.

11. Can Kinopolis make changes to this Privacy Protection Policy?

This Privacy Policy may be amended from time to time, including to adapt it to changes in a service or to legal and regulatory requirements. You will always find the most recent version on the website. Important changes will be indicated the next time you visit our website.
